Integrated Border Management Conference 2010

Delivering Integrated Border Management: Challenges and Solutions

Thursday 10th June 2010 . Sofitel Europe Brussels

Background

The Integrated Border Management Conference 2010 will once again bring together the key policy-makers, governmental agencies, industry players and other stakeholders, to debate the policy and practical issues relating to the management of Europe's borders.

An initiative from the British Chamber of Commerce in Belgium and hosted by Accenture, this conference is a major opportunity for the border management community to engage with each other at a time when border security issues are high on the political agenda.

The conference will look at existing programmes and technologies, presenting the experience gained in implementing integrated border management solutions around Europe and the world that are available today. The key policy issues that need to be addressed in developing these solutions will also be discussed, looking at areas such as data privacy and protection, information management systems and supporting the Internal Security Strategy.

In addition, the conference will address the practical issues around the deployment of border security and travel facilitation tools and solutions, and the border control and immigration authorities' perspective on integrated border management.

Further information can be found below and also online at www.bordermanagement.eu
